Lola, despite not being beside you for the past years, I'm glad we still got to celebrate your 50th golden wedding with Lolo. We knew it's what you've wanted for a long time, to catch up with everyone from your students to coworkers to friends and family. There are too many memories to mention but a few comes to mind. I'll cherish our daily errands when you'd come to visit me in Davao, with a lunch at Jollibee, of course. I'll always remember the milo ice candy you'd always make for me when I'd visit you and Lolo because you knew that was my favourite. Facetime calls wherein you'd always compliment my makeup and how I should do your eyebrows when we'd see each other next. I love you, La. We miss you.
