I often remember as a child listening to my aunt Jessie and grandmother's (Annie Morley) conversations. They had the most intelligent conversations about life and gave the best advice all the way up until I was a teenager. I was always excited to see her and Uncle Quinto. The encouraged me so much about education and life. Although I'm deeply sadden I just found out we lost her yesterday and didn't get a fair chance to say goodbye, it warms my heart to know she's with Uncle Quinto and my grandmother as well as my son. RIP Aunt Jessie.

I remember, my mom Annie, (Aunt Jessie sister) always saying how she admired Aunt Jessie. I remember Aunt Jessie always calling Mom 1 AM EST (12 AM PST.) on Saturday nights, and they would talk late into the night. I am comforted to know that they are both in God's hand together and now have plenty of time to talk without troubles or burdens.
