May god always be with her and she with me for all of my days. My sister was larger than this world and is probably helping us much more from above. She survived much more than hurricane Ike. She lived through a difficult childhood and all of her years was misdiagnosed by doctors of the true nature of her ailments. She was always my inspiration and treated me with loving kindness. My fondest moments are when we were just mere children and we played miss America with the neighbor girl somehow she always managed to win imagine that. She also liked climbing oak trees. I often visit with her in my times of trouble and I know She is always right there with with me with her beautiful blonde hair and her pleasant smile. She was My protector, my loving sister I will love you for eternity and somehow believe I will be seeing you again. p.s. bluebonnet dreams in the sunshine

Dear Dan, My deepest condolence, for your ever loving wife and best friend Eliga. There are no words that can describe such a great loss. She was a light of hope to all who came across her path. She never gave up, even until the end. She only knew the meaning of life and to never surrender against all odds. When countless of cancer patients wanted to throw in the towel in their lives, Mrs Fox was the most decorated in the battlefield. She gave a testimony that rarely could be matched by other soldiers of cancer. Those patients eyes would light up as they listened to Mrs. Fox's struggle against cancer. Once these timid souls got wind of Mrs. Fox's battles' they would leave with a changed look on their face. Faces that once carried doubt, fear, loss, despair and hopelessness; In the twinkling of an eye, Mrs. Fox put light, hope, belief, security, cheer, and faith back in those soldiers lives...soldiers of cancer. May you continue to shine Mrs Fox. For you carry the light that never goes out. The light that shines from the heart and echoes into eternity with no end. And may the Lord bless you always Dan, in your journey of life. Your friend Gilbert.
